

CRC Article 28 - All children have the right to learn.

CRC Article 12 – All children have the right to be listened to.

Learning Objectives

To recognise what all children need to stay alive and grow up well.

To begin to find out about the experiences of children in other countries and cultures.

Introduction

Today you will be thinking about the important things that children need to stay alive and grow up well.

I wonder what some of these things might be?

Let's play a game so we can think about these things.

Activity

What could be in the bag? What does it feel like? Have a guess at what it might be.

Now let's see what it is. What does this important item make you think of? Is it important to all children?

Look at the photograph that links to this object. How are the children experiencing this important thing in their lives?

Which label or labels could we add to this photograph? Should we add family, home, food or water?

Now have a go at guessing the next item in the bag...

Conclusion

Do you all have the things we have talked about? A family, food, water and a home?
Do you think all children should have these things?

All the things we have looked at are important things that every child needs, these needs are called 'rights.'

All children have a right to clean water, food, a home and to be part of a family.

These important 'rights' are a few from a big list of things (the CRC) that people have agreed that all children in the world should have.

We can add the RIGHTS label to all of these photographs.
